Main contributions during 2013

- The knowledge capacities of women agroprocessors were strengthened through training in management of sales tax and bulk purchasing of raw material in an effort to reduce the cost of production of their product lines, as well as increase access to potential sources of funding to improve the service delivery of their organization to its members.
- A needs assessment was conducted of the food safety processes and procedures of agribusinesses and public agencies involved in food processing and handling to establish SPS protocols for Antigua and Barbuda.
